

COMM444: Crisis Communication

This course examines the role of communication before, during, and after crises. Both theoretical and practical applications of crisis communication will be studied. Students are expected to complete projects that intersect interpersonal, corporate, community, and mediated contexts.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Department: Communication and Media Studies

Semester Offered:

Fall